PRESS RELEASE

Bristol Choir in Good Housekeeping Magazine's Choir of the Year Final

Bristol Fashion, a multi-award winning ladies choir from Bristol, has sung its way to the finals of Good Housekeeping Magazine's Choir of the Year Competition.

The 46-strong chorus, which sings four part harmony a cappella, is one of five choirs shortlisted for the final which will be held in London tomorrow, Thursday 7th October.

Led by its musical director Craig Kehoe, Bristol Fashion will perform three contrasting songs from its repertoire in front of the judges who include the actress Jane Asher, Suzi Digby from Last Choir Standing, composer and record producer Chris Craker, tenor Jonathan Ansell and Liz Kershaw of Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Craig Kehoe says: "It is a huge achievement to be selected as one of only five finalists. We are very excited about going to London and singing in front of the judges."

As well as preparing for the Choir of the Year Final, Bristol Fashion is rehearsing hard for the annual Ladies Association of British Barbershop Singers Convention which takes place in Llandudno at the end of October.

At last year's Convention, Bristol Fashion was awarded the Most Improved Chorus trophy. Craig Kehoe also won the trophy for the Musical Director who has made most improvement to a Chorus. The Chorus is hoping to better last year's achievements.

Bristol Fashion rehearses on Thursday evenings at Four Acres School in Withywood. New members are very welcome. For more information about joining or booking Bristol Fashion for a sing-out, please visit www.bristol-fashion.org.uk
